30th PARALLEL LINE.
Another Railroad.

EDITORS HEADLINE:—The subject of a railroad article in the 3rd paper, containing an extract from the Evening Bulletin, Sentinel, upon railroad interests in an easterly and westerly direction through Utah and Nevada, is worthy of further consideration. In a few years St. Louis and San Francisco will have a new and direct connection by rail, which to individualize we will call the 30th Parallel Road, and this route will pass directly through the richest mineral, agricultural and timber districts of Colorado, Utah and Nevada. Between the 37th and 41st parallels, north latitude, in these three Territories, are comprised more of gold, silver, lead, iron, coal, copper, timber, furs, game, and other valuable natural deposits, than in any other section of equal area, across the great Sierra Madre and Sierra Nevada ranges. This vast belt of country, extending from Denver, in Colorado, to Mono and Inyo counties, California, is comparatively unexplored, but it is known that it will be discovered to prove that no distant day it will embrace more mills, mines, furnaces and reduction works than all the country besides west of the Mississippi. A railroad route that will traverse near to the central line of this great mineral belt will in time turn into local business than any other trans-continental road whatever.

This entire belt of richest mineral territory, 300 miles in width, and 1,000 in length, would pay out tribute to such a central route.

Any railroad projected upon or near to this line indicated, or so located as to become a great feeder thereto, must be, in the logic of events, an assured success. Salt Lake City holds a central place within this mighty belt. Nature has formed the bulwarks of her commanding geographical position. It is in view of this general outlook that we add the following suggestion to those contained in your article, as well as those expressed by the Sentinel:

Unquestionably the true policy of mine owners and residents in the central counties of Nevada is to work for an east and west road, which will in turn become a link in the 30th parallel road direct, between St. Louis and San Francisco.

The route suggested by the Sentinel article relates to that portion westward from Salt Lake City, through Nevada, into the State of California. It is well known that capitalists are already projecting a road from Denver to Salt Lake City. Two roads have been proposed, either of which will traverse new mining districts and a region unsurpassed in coal, timber, water and grazing lands. In Utah this route will come into close relation with all, and pass through several of the already developed silver and coal districts of the Wasatch range, the great treasure region of the Territory. Westward from this point the most favorable route will follow the line of the Salt Lake, Sevier Valley and Pioche Railroad for a considerable distance, crossing the southern extremity of Great Salt Lake, leaving the road in Rush Valley near the old overland stage road.

Some of the more important mining districts traversed or passed near to in Utah, are Tooele, Rush Valley, Ophir, Camp Floyd and Tintic, in the Quinry Range, the left then New York, Colorado, Silver Peak, Santa Antonio, Gold Mountain, Aurora, Lone Pine, and then across the borders of the State into Mono or Inyo county, California.

From thence the road could cross the Sierra Nevada by a better pass than to the northward, and either connecting with the railroad system of California, already constructed at Visalia, or could branch by one arm to San Francisco, and the other to Los Angeles or other southern port. The mines in the vicinity of Austin alone, lying directly upon this route, have produced $1,500,000 of treasure, and would quickly quadruple that sum.

This road is demanded by the inexhaustible resources of the country. Its construction would not hinder the prosperity of the Union and the Central Pacific. The more rapid development of the whole country would afford employment for both great routes, and traverse roads, connecting the two at localities ranging from two hundred to three hundred miles apart, would also be demanded.

As well might one object to more than one great railroad across the Alleghenies, where now are the lines of the N. Y. Central, Erie, Penna. Central and Baltimore & Ohio. This immense region of treasure and production will soon—very soon—comprise three States of half a million industrial population. Nature has indicated this additional great highway across the continent, and the time for consideration and organization to begin construction is now.

The Salt Lake, Sevier Valley & Pioche road, already begun, will be the Central feeder, as it will also for a part form a middle section on the greater east and west line. The iron deposits and coal fields of Northwestern Utah are rich in extent and quality, need to be reached by rail, in order to supply materials for building new roads and increasing fuel for operating both old and new roads in this section of country. With this road operation from Salt Lake City to the mountains of Iron county, Utah, the smelting furnaces and rolling mills will very soon follow. Already eastern capitalists are considering the erection of these works. Analysis of the ore has shown these to be among the richest in the world, and magnetic mines of the world. Coal, lime, fire-stone and all agricultural resources are at hand in great abundance. J. M. B.
